

Co-treatment Philosophy

At Hertel & Brown Physical & Aquatic Therapy, we believe in the co-treatment philosophy. This means that after your initial evaluation, you may also be treated by another therapist during one or more of your follow-up sessions.

We strive to provide you with consistency of care at every therapy session in order to help you reach your goals and decrease your pain. This is why all the details of every one of your treatment sessions are well documented. In addition, all of our therapists work together with open lines of communication to stay up to date on your progress, and share ideas and strategies that will improve your care. It serves as a benefit to our patients to have multiple trained professionals caring for them.

Another goal of ours is to provide you with convenient accessibility to appointment times by offering early morning and late evening hours. In order to staff that many hours at the clinic, you may see a different therapist during different hours.

If you do prefer to work with one specific therapist, please let the front desk staff know that when scheduling. We will do our best to coordinate your request with that therapist's schedule.
